Seduction, Infanticide and Death-Painful and Revolting Example of Illicit Love. The Elmira (N. Y.) Press of late date ob-

A disgraceful affair has been in progress at Horseheads for a series of months, the sickening details and revolting termination of which have just come to light. Mr. J. W. Howard, who has heretofore held a respectation of the side of the series of the se on as a merchant in that place, on the 1st of January last seduced a respectable young woman by the name of Kate Conway, under a solemn promise of marriage. From that time the unfortunate woman seems to have been completely under his control.

Several weeks since, finding herself in a condition that could not long be concealed from the public, the poor girl earnestly begged of her seducer to make good his promise. This atonement he denied her, but promised that he would aid her in concealing the harms. He then removed he have ng the shame. He then requested Dr. Patchen, of Havana, to produce an abortion.
This Dr. P. refused to do, when Howard undertook the operation himself, and as soon as the deed was accomplished, he furnished the girl with means to get to her friends who reside some six miles from Owego. She staid there a few days, when the child was born; she then threw the body into the Owego Creek, Fearing that her sickness would expose her condition to her friends, she returned to Horseheads, where she remained a day or two at Howard's residence. Not liking the idea of having her sick upon his hands, Howard again furnished her with money and started her for Owego. On arriving at Elmira the wretched woman's strength gave out, and she was compelled to stop at the house of a lady with whom she had a slight acquaintance, Mrs. Herrick, residing on Dewitt-street. This was on Monday of last Dewitt-street. This was on Monday of last week. She never recovered from the prostration produced by the operation, and the over-exertion in journeying to and fro to conceal her shame, but steadily grew worse until Saturday evening, at a quarter before five o'clock, when death came to her relief.

A warrant was placed in the hands of officer Hubbert impredictable of the their contents. Officer Hulbert immediately after the inquest, and Howard was brought to Elmira. Yesterday afternoon an examination was held before Justice Reynolds. We learn that Miss Conway stated previous to her death that Howard had told her that he had performed a similar operation on her twin sister, which resulted in her death.

A SUPERB HORSEWOMAN-A Lady Gay Spanker in the Prairies.—A Milwankie (Wis.) journal, of late date, says that the other day the people along King and Pinkney-streets were startled by a horse, with a young lady on his back, running at furious speed in the direction of the American House. She had evidently lost control of him, and every one expected to see her dashed to the ground and seriously hurt, if not killed outright. Turning down Washington-avenue, he shot through the crowd of wood-wagons and other vehicles, and dashed directly into the livery stable just below the American. A great rush of people immediately filled the stable, fearful that the girl was killed. But with the exception of some rents in her riding dress, she was unburt. She had kept her seat and seemed perfectly cool and collected. Spanker in the Prairies. - A Milwankie (Wis, at and seemed perfectly cool and collected. Il that troubled her, she declared, during

She then declared she would ride that horse or die in the attempt. Remounting the animal, she rode out in the street, when he acted so badly that a man got him by the bits, and led him into the stable, where, after some stroking down and "horse-talk," his nerves were partially quieted, and Miss Dennison rode him away in triumph.

RECEPTION OF A HERO HALF A CENTURY Ago .- The Providence (R. I.) Gazette, of November 20, 1813, announced the arrival of Perry at his home, after his brilliant victory, as follows:

On Monday morning last arrived in this town, from signal scenes of glory, Commodore Perry, the hero of Lake Erie, having closed his Western campaign with a luster that will importable his arrest. that will immortalize his name in the annals of his country. The display of the Union flag, repeated discharges from the united train of artillery, with the ringing of bells, demonstrated the feelings of his countrymen on the happy return of the hero to his native State, after many "hair-breadth 'scapes" and "moving accidents by flood and field."

At last, however, the property being proved, he was taken and sentenced to two year's imprisonment.

Life in New York-Melancholy Career of | The Struggles of an Actress for a Title-An | a Broken Merchant.

Edward Carter, a feeble old man over sixty-two, and once an extensive merchant in New York, was arrested there on Tuesday for swindling a merchant by borrowing money on a check which proved to be worthless. The New York Express says:

When arraigned before the Justice, venerable looking prisoner, who was poorly but neatly clad, related a state of facts which at once excited the sympathy of all who heard it in his behalf, for it was clearly evi-dent that he had no home or means of support, and that dire necessity had compelled him to commit a crime for the purpose of being furnished with food at the public ex-pense, and to have a place to rest his weary bones, even if it should be in a felon's cell. bones, even if it should be in a felon's cell.

Mr. Carter stated to Judge Kelly that in 1824 and 1833 he was a merchant and extensive importer in this city, but a series of reverses had reduced him to penury and want, and now he was without food or a place to sleep. He said he was well acquainted with Simeon Draper and many other old New York merchants, but he did

Cambridge, Mass., but he did not feel at lib erty to call on them for aid; he had repeat

The complaint being perfected, Mr. Carter was informed by Mr. Murray, the clerk, that it was necessary for him to find bail in the sum of $500 for his future appearance for trial before the Court of Sessions, to which he replied: "Sir, I am guilty, and want no bail; I desire to go to prison and stay there;" and he started below with the officer with a quick, firm step, and an apparently light heart, with the idea that he would be furnished with the comforts if not the luxuries nished with the comforts if not the luxurie

GREAT CAPACITY OF MACHINERY .- The London Quarterly Review, in an article upon cotton-spinning machines and their inventors, thus illustrates the productiveness of brain and hand, by showing what machinery now enables the cotton-spinner to do with a pound of cotton:

Mr. Bazley, of Manchester, exports what is called No. 240 yarn in large quantities, for the use of the finest foreign muslin manufactures. Of the fineness of this thread some idea may be formed when we state that 240 hanks, each 840 yards in length, are spun from a single pound weight of cotton, or a total length of above 114 miles! But this does not by any means exhaust the carabilities. not by any means exhaust the capabilities of English machinery; for at the great exhibition of 1851, specimens of yarn spun at Bolton were exhibited so fine as No. 700, or equal to 334 miles in length, spun from one pound of material! Worked up into the finer kinds of lace, the original shilling's-worth of cotton-wool, before it passes into the hands of the consumer, may be increased to the value of between £300 and £400,

FREE-LOVE IN NEW ENGLAND-A Passio of Four Days' Duration.—A case of scandal which has recently occurred in our midst, says the Providence (R. I.) Post, is exciting some attention. The parties are John D. Marshall, who has hitherto sustained a good Marshall, who has hitherto sustained a good reputation, and for several years been employed as a delivery-clerk in the Postoffise, and a girl less than sixteen years old, daughter of a respectable citizen. They both disappeared from this city on Wednesday of last week, Marshall leaving behind him a wife and two children, totally unprovided for. After stopping one night in Pawtucket, the pair went to Albany, N. Y., and remained there three or four days, until what little money they had taken with them was exhausted, when Marshall telegraphed to his brother-in-law his whereabouts, with a his brother-in-law his whereabouts, with a request for money to get back home with. Money was sent, and on Wednesday last they arrived in Providence again. After-ward Marshall was arrested on a warrant for COURT INTRIGUES OF SPAIN-Banishment of an Obnozious Nun.-A letter from Madrid says, that the notorious Patrocinio has been banished from that capital, and from the banished from that capital, and from the royal residences in its neighborhood, in all of which she had contrived to establish convents. The Duke de Montpensier was believed to have had something to do with bringing about this decided measure. It was thought probable that alike fate awaited Father Claret, the Queen's confessor. It is understood that the husband of the Infanta Luisa is no partisan of such illegitimate in-fluence, and his education renders it almost impossible that he should consider the miimpossible that he should consider the mi-raculous attributes of Patrocinic otherwise than with contempt. So great, however, is the influence the nun is known to have pos-sessed with the Queen and her husband, that it is to be feared the measure, if really taken, is likely soon to be repealed.

A NEW LIFE OF MICHAEL ANGELO,-Her A NEW LIFE OF MICHAEL ANGELO.—Herman Grimm, the son of Wilhelm Grimm, who married, about a year ago, a daughter of Bettini Von Arnim, and who enjoys some literary reputation by his sesthetical and poetical writings, has just published the first volume of his Life of Michael Angelo. Herman Grimm is the Emile Montegut, of Berlin, in his appreciation of Emerson, and the transcendental school of Old and New England writers. England writers.

EXAMINATION OF DIBEASED CATTLE .- The Massachusetts Cattle Commissioners have killed three of Mr. Chenery's diseased cattle, and found the lungs adhering to the ribs and diaphragm, and filled with old ulcers and hard bunches, the size of hen's eggs. These were not at present cases of pleuro-pueu-monia, but appeared to be the result of this disease passing into consumption.

The London correspondent of the New Orleans Delta, speaking of the British noblemen who had married actresses, says:

One Countess out of the many who have advanced from the ranks, fought her way advanced from the ranks, fought her way manfully—or rather womanly—to the honor, and beset the poor Earl in a dozen different ways after he had in his inmost aristocratic heart determined, though he loved the lady, not to give way to his attachment, and quarter the family arms with the "busk." The noble Lord was frightened and timid of the danger that beset his heart, and kept aloof; he rushed down to his mother's seat for a month, but the elever actress was resolved to be near him and not let love cool. solved to be near him and not let love cool She engaged herself to a lady of title as a lady's maid, who was on a visit to the chatan, and where my Lord was reading some-thing philosophic and calming to love; she appeared as a dimpering, simpering servant, with a note which had just been written by herself to him, and delivered it herself. The nobleman was overcome, begged and en-treated of the fair lady's maid who naively expressed her surprise at the observation of the intellect of the noble Lord, and thus she kept up the game for a month, the patrician gazing constantly and bewilderingly on the fair waiting-woman, till he was half inclined to declare his passion to her instead of the actess if the way not really his theory. actress, if she were not really his theatrical inamorals. Up to town he went again to the the theater immediately the next night, but the next night Kitty was there, too, acting as before, after a long and serious Illness—as the bills stated-and certainly she did look the bills stated—and certainly she did look wan; and as she eyed the nobleman reproachfully, he did not know whether he had been half a villain, or was wholly a fool. But he resolved to set out for the Continent to Paris. He was safe there.

PNo sooner, however, had he, after a week's recess, made his debut in the zalons of a Quartier St. German's family than the inevitable.

recess, made his debut in the saloms of a Quartier St. Germain's family, than the inevitable actress was there as the Baroness Hechtel, a German lady, who was introduced by the same lady who was at his mother's, and evidently in the plot, and who had owned her as a waiting-woman. The poor lord's head was turned, and he was away per difference, back sagin; and was free at late. gence, back again; and was free at last. There was no one in the interior of the ve-hicle but himself and a young man elegantly dressed, and two old country people, returning home. The noble lord soon dropped off into the land of Nod. They were fifty miles away from Paris; the night was dark, and only a little ray, a dirty-oil streak of illumination, lighted the interior of the diligence, as he works in the light was far when the stream of the light was the works in the stream of the light was the works in the stream of the light was the works in the stream of the light was the works in the stream of the light was the works with the stream of the light was the works with the stream of the light was the works with the stream of the light was the works with the stream of the light was the works with the stream of the light was the works with the stream of the light was the works with the stream of the light was the works when the stream of the light was the work was as he woke up to his uncomfortable position and asked the youthful ris-a-vis to enjamber as the French call it-a requisite which was as the French call it—a requisite which was not very willingly, or rather shyly, consented to, which surprised the youthful nobleman, and made him peer closer under the slouched fur traveling-cap of his visa vis, when the exclamation, "Kitty," burst from his lips, and a loud ring of laughter from the persevering masqueradar, answered as to the truth.

They were locked up in the diligence fo They were locked up in the diligence for thirty-two mortal hours; and the lord would not escape her this time, whether it was her perseverence, her tears, or the enjambement, that touched him, it is not for me or the recorder of this old-fashioned anecdote of the Centipede's Courtship, to say—suffice it that they were married shortly after, and, better still, it was a happy marriage. How PAGANINI, THE GREAT VIOLINIST, WAS

CURED OF GAMBLING .- The Paris correpondent of the New Orleans Picayune says: Did you ever know that Paganini was desperately fond of gaming once? I shall tell you how he was cured of this passion. Paganini's fovorite violin was a large Guarnerius, so-called from Guarnerius, their maker, (these instruments are worth twice their weight in gold), which a Russian Prince was anytons to receive the him. Prince was anxious to purchase from him. He often asked Paganini to sell it to him, and at last Paganini, tired of his repeated appeals, told him he would sell the violin for $1,000. The Prince told him he must be joking, to ask such a sum of money, but that he would give him $500 for it. Paganini had lost every thing he owned at gaming, tables the night before; his jewelf, his rings, his breast-pins, his watch, had all been lost, and he had nothing in the world but thirty francs and his violin left. He was about to francs and his violin left. He was about to accept the Princo's offer, when he determined to appeal once more to the gamblingtable. He did so. He lost, lost, lost—nothing was left in his hand but three francs, and he was ebliged to leave the next day for St. Petersburg. He staked these three francs. The run of luck turned, and he soon won money enough to carry him to St. Petersburg. "I was saved!" said Paganini, speaking of this incident. "I was sure of keeping my beloved Guarnerius. Since then, I siw that a gambler is the most contemptible being on the earth, and I have never since touched a card."

Taking Advantage of a Widow's Ar-fections.—An unprincipled young peddler made love to a buxom widow in Pennsyl-vania. He accompanied his declaration with an allusion to two impediments to their union. "Name them," said the widow The want of means to set up a retail store. The want of means to set up a retail store. They parted, and the widow sent the peddler a check for ample means. When they met again the pedler had hired and stocked his store, and the smiling fair one begged to know the other impediment. "I have another wife!" cried the notion dealer.

BARON ROTHECHILD IN THE SYNAGOGUE Among the many worshippers at the Nine-teenth-street Synagogue, New York, on Wednesday, "the day of Atonement." Baron Rothschild was particularly noticed. To Rothschild was particularly noticed. To judge from his uninterrupted presence there, during the greater part of the day, he seemed to be a strict devotee of the faith of his kindred. It is understood that the Baron has contributed a handsome amount to the charitable fund of the Synangers. charitable fund of the Synagogue.

A BARONESS COMMITTED TO AN AUSTRIAN Paison.—The wife of the Austrian General Enyatten, who committed suicide upon the discovery of his gigantic frauds during the late Italian war, was lately sentenced to three years hard labor, her extravagant habits having encouraged her husband in his acts of depredation. In consideration of her children her sentence was commuted to three months imprisonment.

Harrisburg de Cotober 3.—The Prince was serenaded during the night by the Capitol Band. Long before the hour when he was announced to leave the hotel thousands of announced to leave the hotel thousands of people had congregated to get a glimpse of him, a large proportion of whom were ladies. In a conversation, the Prince and the Duke of Newcor'le expressed themselves highly gratified with their visit to America. Politics were thrown aside even here to do honor to the Nation's guest. At nine o'clock the content americal from the heat and the cortege emerged from the botel and the thousands sent up shouts of applause, while the ladies waved their handkerchiefs. The scene was animated in the extreme. The Prince was driven in an open carriage, drawn by four beautiful greys, the property of an euthusiastic Irishman. The party, consisting of the Prince, Mayor Kep-ner, the Duke of Newcastle and Lord Lyons, drove through Front-street, on the bank of the Susquebanna, to the Capitol, followed by other carriages containing the Commit-tee. They alighted at the Capitol and paid a visit to the Governor in his private apartments. Governor Packer addressed the a visit to the Governor in his private apartments. Governor Packer addressed the Prince in appropriate terms. The Prince briefly replied, expressing his sincere sense of the high honor conferred on him in the great State of Pennsylvania. The Prince and suite, with Governor Packer, then visited the Capitol buildings, and after viewing the scene from the dome of the Capitol, the party started for Washington.

Baltimore, October 3.—The Prince arrived here at half-past one and passed through Baltimore-street on his way to the Washing-

As he alighted the band atruck up "God Save the Queen." The Prince and suite rode in open carriages and were greeted with much enthusiasm, to which they responded by bowing repeatedly.

Washington, October 3.—Baron Renfrew arrived at four o'clock by a special train. There were about a thousand spectators at the station, evincing intense anxiety to obthe station, evincing intense anxiety to obtain a view of his person, and in this they were gratified. They greeted his appearance with cheers. Immediately upon the arrival of the train, General Cass was introduced to Lord Renfrew by Lord Lyons, when the former said he had the pleasure of welcoming His Lordship to Washington, in the name of the President, and with His Lordship's permission has would accommand him. ship's permission, he would accompany him to the Executive mansion. There were present with Gen. Cass, Meszrs, Henry and Buchanan, nephews of the President, each formerly his private secretary, and on this occasion representing the President's family, Several carriages of the President, together with those of Secretaries Toucey, Cobb, Thompson and Cass and Lord Lyons were in waiting to convey the party to the White House. Upon arriving at the mansion he was presented to the President by Gen. Cass and received a cordial welcome. Lord Ly ons then performed the ceremony of intro-ducing the suit. The proceedings were pri-vate, the gates being closed to prevent in-trusion and were guarded by police officers. It is a noticeable fact that Gen. Cass, who, under the theory of the British Constitution, was a born British subject, his nativity being before the treaty of peace, received the Prince in the name of the President, besides, he was present at the coronation of his American Board of Poreign Missions. American Board of Poreign Missions.
